

Nancy
Hanks
Lincoln
Public
Library

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S
LINCOLN CYCLE

BOYHOOD CYCLE
"Myself"

The Rich Little Poor Boy.

From a Seven-year-old Boy:

It is the best moving picture I ever saw.

Ernest Warren Porter, Jr.

A Congressman:

I consider it the most interesting moving picture that I ever attended.

Hon. Edward E. Browne.

From a Lawyer:

The moral lesson taught by your pictures should make a deep and lasting impression upon the future life and conduct of a rising generation.

Ralph E. Walker.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S LINCOLN CYCLE

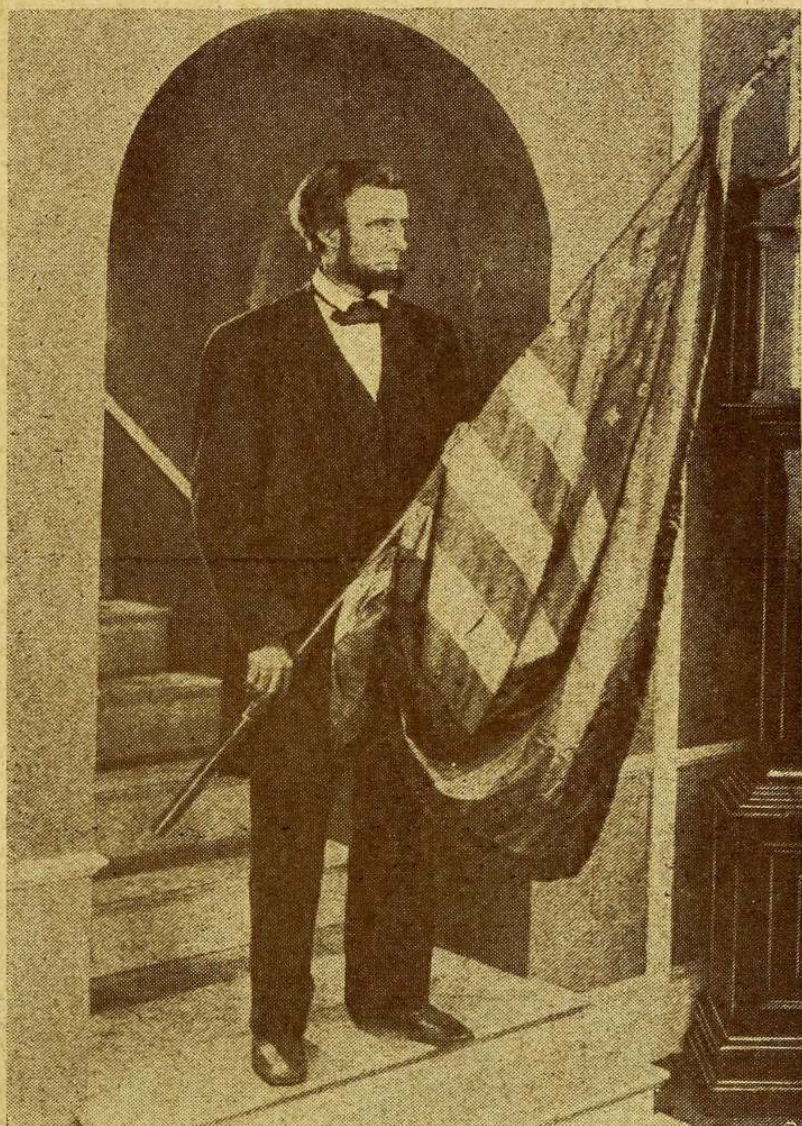

Young Abe Lincoln wouldn't have broken
His Promise to his Mother—
If Jim hadn't taken a Chicken.
Huck was going to beat Jim,
Abe suggested a Trial.
Abe pleaded for Jim—the Jury decided
NOT GUILTY!
So Huck hit Jim anyway.
Abe took Jim's part
There was Fighting
And plenty of Trouble
When the Preacher arrived. . . .
Then more Trouble
And Laughs and Tears
Until All goes Well.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S
LINCOLN CYCLE

"The Call to Arms"

Sequel to Boyhood Cycle Feature "MY MOTHER"

"Not one of those stars shall be lost!"

From a War Veteran:

The pictures will inspire confidence, hope, ambition and patriotism in the minds and hearts of every man, woman and child.

Artist:

General Nelson A. Miles.

Artistically, historically and psychologically an achievement for which the entire country must feel indebted to you. Not only does it visualize Lincoln in all his greatness, but it is a reverberation which penetrates the nation's very soul.

George Julian Zolnay.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S LINCOLN CYCLE

“The Call to Arms”

“We want Action, not Words,”
said the President,

“For you know

“Action speaks louder than words.”

“Let us divide the country into

“Four parts”

Was the advice

Of one

Of his generals.

“No, no, we must fight,”

said another.

And the Great President said

“My way is as straight as a turn-pike road,

“For there is a signboard on the road

“That bears the single word “UNION.”

“And, gentlemen, our Union is the hope

“Not only of America

“But of the world.”

He called upon the people.

His call is still heard round the world.

Its latest echo was in Russia.

And in Germany it shall be heard.

71.2009.084.11559

Nancy
Hanks
Lincoln
Public
Library